To whom it may concern,
Dear All,

A cars enthusiast since childhood, I know almost every bit and piece in cars from sedans to SUVs, and from exotic, muscle, imports (JDM) to luxury cars. I'm looking for a job as a showroom cars salesman in a pursuit of my dream to get involved in this industry, which I'm willing to utilize all my selling skills of over 6 years and do whatever it takes to further develop these skills to better fit and excel in this domain.

I'm submitting this letter to express my strong desire to be considered for a car salesman position. I fully believe I'm qualified to fill the position and make great contributions to encourage the growth and thriving of the organization.

A brief review of my career working experience will reveal what I can contribute; Having a bachelor degree in Banking and Finance. I have more than 6 years of experience in multiple domains and a consistent and successful record of accomplishments.

Currently a Senior Sales & Team leader and economic researcher & analyst and before that an accountant, I have the ability to manage many multi-disciplinary projects and navigate complex challenges.

Moreover, I possess the capability to work towards tight deadlines and manage several projects simultaneously, with a great ability to easily work with teams.

I possess a huge capability of working with different POS Systems and CRM (Contacts Relationship Management). I have a great experience in information technology. In addition to excellent Microsoft Office tools skills (Word, Excel, Access, Outlook, PowerPoint). I can handle multiple tasks and large quantity of information at once with great capabilities of rapid analysis, research and output. These skills allow me to maneuver and accomplish any task at hand and will greatly come in handy when combined with my vast knowledge in cars.

I am able to work under pressure (currently working 2 jobs), organized, meticulous, great communication skills that can help me optimize my performance at work.

I'm very organized, result-oriented and have a keen eye for details.

I am an excellent team player with the capability to lead whenever needed.

I'm convinced that I can provide you with the detailed information needed for you to see what positive contributions I could make if given the chance to come in for an interview.

Looking forward to meeting you.

Sincerely,
Omar Bekdachi
